The Chelsea Piers Sports and Entertainment Complex is a $100 million development of four abandoned west-side piers offering a wide range of activities. Several feature films and TV series have been filmed in the newly renovated studios. The studio facility is currently expanding and will comprise 300,000 square ft. of sound-stage and support space when completed.

Acoustic Dimensions provided expert advice relating to sound isolation and intrusive noise control, room acoustics, and air conditioning system noise control in continuing efforts to upgrade the film and television studios, including work for the home of Law and Order, the longest running prime-time drama currently on American television.
