Broadway Video is one of New York's leading independent entertainment production companies, founded in 1979 by Lorne Michaels, the eight-time Emmy Award-winning creator and executive producer of Saturday Night Live. From creative development and production to editing, design, sound and interactive media, Broadway Video offers a depth of talent, technology and expertise that is at the top of the industry.

Broadway Video is engaged in an ongoing effort to maintain and update its film and video editing facility to accommodate the most stringent requirements of their top-name clients.

AD provided design services for the renovation and construction of new and remodeled production facilities including nonlinear editing, audio and video mixing and post-production rooms. Our work has included upgrades to existing studios, as well as design of new facilities to replace older spaces.

In addition to Broadway Video, AD also worked with Broadway Sound to improve the room acoustics and sound isolation in the music recording and production suites.
