At the end of 2008, Home Box Office will be expanding into a new midtown Manhattan space, increasing HBO Studio Support along with several small 'think-tank groups' being supported by HBO.

Acoustics, Audio and Video systems were designed for each of the six small screening rooms, along with a number of conference rooms with video conferencing capabilities. High levels of speech privacy are achieved within private and open office spaces through the combination of a specified sound masking system and careful selection and detailing of partition systems.
