

projects

© Alan J. Stephens

perimeter church's the bricks

Client: Perimeter Church

Location: Duluth, GA

Project Type: New Construction

Seat Count: 800

Opening: 2004

Architect: CDH Partners

Contact: John Purcell | Staff Director | 678.405.2510

AD Scope: Audio | Video | Lighting Design

Perimeter Church embarked on a $13 million dollar expansion project that includes a new student center for junior and senior high students called "The Bricks". The facility consists of a coffee house (The Shed), cantina (Cliff Hanger Café), rock wall (students must have a signed waiver form to climb), game room and an 800-seat auditorium (The Hanger.)

Perimeter worked with CDH Partners on the design of the space which has a very industrial look and feel. Large overhead glass "garage" doors separate the spaces. They can be closed for more intimacy or opened up to create a wide space. Inspiration came from a non-church venue.

Flexibility was the driving factor in the design of all of the performance technologies. The audio systems were designed to be able to support intimacy or "get up and run." Lighting systems were designed to be able to up the "cool quotient" on the platform, and the control booths are oversized to allow for training of future audio, video and lighting techs.

ACOUSTIC DIMENSIONS